

Prettys are 'Backing Young Suffolk'

"We have very much benefited from having Broderick (our apprentice) with us. Broderick has worked on our network; the various applications operated by us and helped introduce Blackberry's to staff. Throughout this he produced excellent material to leave for reference by future users."

Lisa Bloomfield, Prettys Solicitors

Apprenticeships give individuals the opportunity to complete on the job training enabling them to gain skills and qualifications while being employed. Apprenticeships give employers the chance to train and develop staff that meet the needs of their business while individuals the opportunity to gain the experience necessary for career progression. IDEA is looking for organisations like Prettys Solicitors that have a strong use of IT, not just those who provide IT support to support apprentices within their organisations.

"Being on this apprenticeship has helped me immensely. It has been greatly beneficial to developing myself.

It has given me an insight into how the world of business really works whilst allowing me to gain a qualification in the process.

It has been an eye-opening experience. Learning on the job has taught me far more than I could have learnt in the classroom!"
